Mad Max is not a movie that is easy to talk about. The end of the world is an ending that is culturally determined; you are not constrained to play out a certain ending. I'm not even sure I want to say anything about the movie. I know I'm in the minority of people that didn't hate it. I got the sense that a lot of people hated it. It was a reaction I've had a lot of movies. They are typically all disappointed in me, even ones that have been great. At a certain point you get so insulated from the culture that everything that is being released is a product of this cultural need to have "the conversation" or to "have a conversation" with
