f A: I've just posted a review to the Smaart page. Looks like you need to go to your dashboard and look at the server IP. There's more of a debug thing you can do: Take your script and run it in the shell Hit Ctrl-C to interrupt it Go back to the panel and hit stop. It should now give you a message about a new file being created on your server Hit view source on that new file There's a URL in there with a debug message. That should tell you what your problem is. In 2015, Mitt Romney was the Republican nominee for President. Donald Trump is now. We know the basic facts of the matter. A divided electorate threw Trump the surprise victory that almost no one thought would happen. They've been waiting for a Republican president since Bush left office. At least they felt like they had a Republican president when they voted. Now that that is no longer the case, they've been put back into a place of political crisis. We know that Trump has, at times, refused to comply with some of the most basic elements of the office of President. This violates a long-standing and well-understood understanding of the presidency, but then again, Trump is not a normal president. We also know that many, many Republicans are unhappy about what is happening and that they don't feel that Trump can be controlled. They are right about that. But there are things that Trump could do right now that would change the nature of his presidency and his ability to govern. But he has not done any of them. I've talked to a lot of friends and acquaintances who supported Trump during the campaign. I don't think they were happy about it, but I think they did it because they still felt like they had a viable, conservative alternative to Hillary Clinton. I think that, in the end, they were voting against her. Now that the results have proved Trump an ineffective, temperamental, cowardly, and lying egomaniac, the only thing those friends and acquaintances can do is just stand by and watch him do his worst. This is not what they signed up for. This is not what they voted for. And this is not how they expected Trump's presidency to go. But they're stuck. They have a problem with the person at the top,
